Joan Mitchell

Forces of Nature

Joan Mitchell (1925–1992) often found inspiration for her subject matter in urban and bucolic landscapes, from her native Chicago to a country home in Vétheuil, France.

Mitchell contrasted areas of thick pigment with sections of bare canvas, playing with our perceptions of surface and depth. Crisscrossing brushstrokes create visual rhythm. Despite their seeming spontaneity, Mitchell’s paintings evolved over months.

In her own words

“My paintings are titled after they are finished. I paint from remembered landscapes that I carry with me—and remembered feelings of them.... I could certainly never mirror nature. I would like more to paint what it leaves me with.”

Who knew?

Sale Neige (French for “dirty snow”) references the artist’s early memories—gazing at frozen Lake Michigan, falling through the ice in a sledding accident, and being a champion figure skater.
