

Colorforms

Anne Truitt often referenced the natural world through color and title. In Greek mythology, a dryad is a female spirit who inhabits forests, specifically oak trees.

Take a closer look

Anne Truitt (1921–2004) achieved her signature silken surfaces by methodically straining acrylic paint and applying up to 40 layers of pigment, sanding between coats. View her simple geometric form from different angles and observe the play of light and shadow across its glossy green planes.

Something to talk about

Truitt used sculpture to express abstract concepts like time and human existence. Her works invoke recognizable forms—crucifixes, tombstones, picket fences, solitary figures—to invite associations between the concrete and the intangible. What references does this piece bring to mind?

In her own words

“I conceive the sculptural form in space, as if the color itself came into being as a form.”
